WHISKY

'Uisge Beatha', the water of life. That's what the old Scotsmen and women called their national drink. Even in these hectic modern times many will find this a fitting term for whisky. First distilled in Scotland and Ireland over 500 years ago, it gradually became one of the world's most diverse, complex, and intriguing spirits.

The aim of the Coburg Bar's whisky compendium is to keep a fluid, flowing menu to showcase the ever-changing face of the whisky world. Although we endeavour to keep certain expressions consistent, due to the nature of production, certain products may not always be available. We all truly hope you enjoy drinking as much as we enjoy searching! Slainte!

THE HOUSE OF SUNTORY

The Nature and Spirit of Japan

Hibiki is the paragon of Japanese whisky, born in pursuit of perfect harmony through the art of blending. Developed and refined over 100 years at The House of Suntory, this artform reaches its nexus with Hibiki 40 Years Old. This stunning blend comprises five supremely aged whiskies that each offer a taste of ancient Japan to the world.

We invite you to discover the Japanese philosophy of Omotenashi and a modern exploration of the art of whisky drinking with the Hibiki Wabako.

The Hibiki Wabako, meaning 'Harmony Box', is unique to The Connaught. Crafted with natural cherry wood and beautifully adorned with maki-e lacquer depicting the changing seasons of Japan, it features twelve Kimura glasses in four distinct styles, each different in shape, texture and weight, inspired by Japan's seasons.

We invite you to personally select your glass, and savour the unique character of our Hibiki Selection.

AMERICAN & CANADIAN

Whiskey from North America has established a distinctively different flavour profile compared to European whisky. In the United States and Canada, the focus is laid more upon corn, rye and wheat as opposed to barley as a base material. Combined with different distilling and ageing techniques whiskey from across the pond is emerging as a generation's favourite.

JAPANESE WHISKY

The last decade has seen the biggest increase in demand for Japanese whisky. Nowadays older bottlings are extremely hard to come by and highly sought after. Crafted after the Scottish whisky model, Japanese whisky has a very distinct character of its own. Using only the purest water the final product is extremely soft and elegant.

THE HOUSE OF SUNTORY

The Nature and Spirit of Japan

Since 1923, Suntory has been renowned as the founding house of Japanese Whisky. Founder Shinjiro Torii built Japan's first malt whisky distillery in Yamazaki, and the Suntory legacy continued with Torii's son and Suntory's second Master Blender, Keizo Saji, who continued to establish distilleries including the Hakushu Distillery.

Embodying the harmony that exists between Japanese nature and Japanese people, House of Suntory whiskies are subtle, refined, and complex.

LAPHROAIG

Laphroaig (Gaelic for 'beautiful hollow by the broad bay') can definitely be described as one of the most flavourful whiskies of Scotland. Laphroaig's arguably divisive, smoky, and earthy profile has not been replicated anywhere else on earth and stands today as a flagship of Islay Single Malt Scotch Whisky.

Laphroaig 15yo 200th Anniversary 43%, Islay	£79
Laphroaig 34yo Ian Hunter Story Book V 45.5%, Islay	£375

HIGHLAND PARK

Situated in the most northern corner of Scotland on the rugged and storm-lashed Orkney Island, Highland Park distillery uses the highly unique, fragrant and herbal Orcadian peat for their delicately smoky whiskies. A great introduction to the world of peated whiskies.

Highland Park 20yo (Whiskyland Chapter 16) 55.5%, Orkney	£89
Highland Park 30yo 45.7%, Orkney Islands	£250

THE GLENROTHES

The Glenrothes distillery has been quietly producing an authentic and soft single malt since 1879 in a hidden valley, deep in the heart of the Speyside region. Drawing the water from the Burn of Rothes, there is a certain rustic elegance surrounding the distillery that many whisky connoisseurs have appreciated over the last decade.

SCOTTISH GRAIN WHISKY

Grain whisky can be based on a variety of grains-not solely malted barley- and is distilled in huge continuous column stills. This speeds up the distillation process and creates a light and delicate spirit. Most of this production will be used for the Blended Whisky industry however sometimes a few extraordinary bottles of single grain whisky can be found.

Carsebridge 48yo 1970, 43.2%, Lowlands

£215

This might very well be one of the last bottles of this long-closed distillery. As most of its production was used as a component for blended whiskies, only a few barrels remained to be released as a Single Grain Whisky. Aged entirely in American oak casks, notes of dried flowers, custard and orange oil are very evident.

IRISH WHISKEY

Traditionally closely linked to Scotch however very different in style. A mixture of malted & unmalted barley and a combination of pot stills and column stills give Irish whiskies their pronounced personality.

SCOTTISH BLENDED MALT WHISKY

As the name suggests, Scottish blended malt whisky describes a whisky that has been created by combining different malt whiskies from various distilleries. As opposed to single malt whiskies-where the malt whisky can only come from one distillery- blended malts generally have more freedom when it comes to blending and can therefore offer new and extremely unique flavour profiles.
